5 Core Principles of the Cotton LEADS™ Program

The Cotton LEADS™ program is committed to five core principles that are consistent with sustainability, the use of best practices and traceability in the supply chain. This joint program initiated by the Australian cotton industry and the United States cotton industry offers manufacturers, brands and retailers a reliable and responsible cotton supply chain solution. Cotton LEADS™ Partners commit to the five core principles and support the use of cottons from the Cotton LEADS™ program in their supply chain.

COMMITMENT to the social, environmental, economic and regulatroy factors required to produce world-class cotton.

RECOGNITION
that sustainable and responsible cotton production requires continual improvement, investment, research and sharing of best practices information among growers and industry.

UNDERSTANDING that leading change in responsible and sustainable cotton practices will have the most positive impact when implemented in collaboration among farm, regional, national and international programs.

BELIEF
in the benefit of working cooperatively with similar programs that seek to advance responsible and sustainable cotton production in an effort to keep global cotton competitive in world fiber markets.

CONFIDENCE
in cotton identification systems that ensure traceability from farm to manufacturer.
